PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS.

Il-ROTORAL DISTRICT OF WEST SYDNEY.—
INOTICE is bereby given that a Public MEETING of the Electors of the abovenamed Electoral District will take place on TUESDAY, the 16th day of February instant, at moon, at the Hustings, Wynyard-square, for the nomination and election of one Member to revive in the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales for the Electoral District of West Sydney, in the place of the Bonorable JOHN ROEKRTSON Eq., where seen hath become vacant by his acceptance of the office of Culonial Secretary.

In the event of more candidates being proposed than the member required, and a poil demanded, the POLLING will take place on TRURBDAY, the 18th day of February instant, at the following places:—

A, B—Masonic Hall, entrance in Clarence-street.

West Sydney, February 15, 1876.

The Blrctors of West Sydney.

Gentlemen,—It must be present to your memory that the Government of Mr. Parkes accepted, as substantially affirmed by the least Parliament, a vote of consure on their conduct in the following words, moved by Mr. Combes, these member for Bathurst:—"That this House regrets that the Governor should have been advised to communicate to the Assembly his Excellency's minute to the Executive Council, dated the 28rd June last, with reference to the release of the prisoner Gardiner, because it is indefensible in certain of its allegatiens, and because, if it is considered to be an answer to the respectful and earnest petitiens of the people, it is highly underrable to convert the records of this House into a means of conveying commer or reproof te our constituents, and if it refers to the discussions in this Chamber, then it is in spirit and effect a breach of the constitutional privileges of Parliament."

In consequence of this position of affairs his Excellency the Governor, on the advice of his the Ministers, dissolved Farliament, and Mr. Parkes commenced his address to the electors of Bast Sydney thus:—"A vote of the Legislative Assembly, which its authors will not find an easy task to justify by fact or reason, has resulted in dissolution of Farliament," to which I rejoined in my address to you in these terms:—"Well, I voted for the mostion thus challenged! I did so advisedly and of aforeshought, under a deep impression of my responsibility to you and to the country, and when now consing before you to seek re-slection I am quite propared to stand or full on the marite or demertia of that action."

You elected me, and at the proper time after the new Parliament had assembled, I moved and carried a resolution to the same effect, as an amendment and addition to the address to his Excellency, in reply to his speech.

The next day, at a last hour, Ministers modered their resignations, and his Excellency subsequantly empowered after William Manning to form a n TO THE BLECTORS OF WEST STOREY.

is of making it appear to way impurgued the truthrunces of his Excellency to way impurgued the truthrunces of his Excellency towards. Never was a more unwarantable assertion orth. Surely allegations of an indefensible kind be made from mistakes, from want of knowledge of streumstances under consideration, and indeed from a variety of other reasons than that of untruthrunces, i suited the aims of certain persons to give the words of this unmatural and forced interpretation. His site of the surely sent the following message to the Legislative milty:—
Hercules Robinson, Governor,—The Governor having is precladed, by the mode of presentation of the address procladed, by the mode of presentation of the address to the contract of the surely to his special gapeech.

"Hawules Robinson, Governor,—The Governor having bean preclaided, by the mode of presentation of the address of the Legislative Assembly, in reply to his spening speech, from giving the samewer in the usual meaner, deems it respectful to the Assembly to do so by message. 2. He acknowledges with satisfaction their appreciate to constitute with his duty, sequiesce in the statement that a Minute laid by him before the Executive Council was indefensible in certain of its allegations. As ultimately responsible for the exercise of the perceptive of mercy, the Governor claims for himself unreserved freedom of communication with the Executive Council while seeking its advice; and he cannot admit that the litimate, viewed in that light, was not entirely justificable. 4. While them asserting the Constitutional rights of the office which he has the honour to held, the Governor trusts he will ever pay the fullest respect to those of the representatives of the people, and he therefore, with this qualification, is prepared to necept the decision of the Assembly.—Government House, Sydney, 2nd February, 1876."

The Governor's Minister (Mr. Parkse) refused to move that this message be printed, shi Mr. Stephen Brewn moved, and I seconded a motion for that purpose.

The first paragraph of the message complains of the mode of presentation, &c., of the address. Against whose does this complaint ite, but against the Governor's Minister? How could any other member know at what time it would be convenient for the Excellency to receive the House with the address, to say nothing of the custom that the duty of moving its transmission properly fell on the Minister?

The second paragraph of the message says, that viewed in the light that it was a minute for his Excellency, the words used were not indefensible, and I never heard anyone as of the wine of the message was the custom the decision of the message was employed and their record there and their publication.

The fourth paragraph of this message was eminently concellatory; yet the Governor's Minister, Mr. Parker, would not move that it be printed.

Sir William Manning having surrendered to the Governor the commission with which he had been entrusted, his Ex-which they gave me that sid. You already know who they are, and that they are all in accord on the great constitutional question that has just been dealt with by Parliament. I venture to hope, and I sincerely believe, that not one of them will be found wanting either in Parliamentary ability, or in any ether of the qualities required for carrying out the important duties they have respectively undertaken.

The Government, as may well be expected from its composition, will aim at removing whatever restrictions to the freedom of trade and commerce still exist in our system of taxasito. In the same direction it will endeavour to secure and maintain effective mail services, and extension of the operation of the precent telegraph system along the coast by night as well as by day, and the improvement of harbour accommodation.

Vigorous efforts will be made to carry out the railways already authorized by Parliament, and to extend our railway system, and other means of internal communication, so as to enable traders and producers to convey the fruits of their enterprise and toil to the large centres of population.

bill to assend the lew relating to collieries will be introduced.

In the interest of the public health of the colony or seriously endeagered by the existing condition of the metropolis, the Government will afford immediate pocuniary help to the authorities of the city, and as specifily at possible will deal fully and equiusly with its financial affairs, and also with those of the other municipalities.

The reform and consolidation of the Criminal Law, and the assimilation of the modes of procedure in the Courts of Common Law and Equity, will be present forward, together with other veforms in the administration of justice, which are ungestly demanded by the public, and come of which have already formed subjects of samious consideration.

A measure for the correction of the frequientities of our existing electoral laws, by means of which a fuller representation of the people of the country will be seened, without undue finterference with the system new inforce, with a view to meet simply, and I hope effectually, those cases in which at present Parliamentary representation does not fairly approach proportionals representation of the electors.

The lews resisting to Lunsoy will also, at an early period, without under finiterference with the system now inforce, will in the time be columbiated to Parliament. It will be freeze with it due time be columbiated to Parliament. It will be freeze with a view to most simply, and I hope described and controlled and controlled to Parliaments. It will be characteristic of the American oriented of freeze which at present Furiamentary representation does not fairly approach proportionate representation of the observer.

The laws minister to Lanacy will also, at the confr period, the characteristic distribution of the controlled with a view to the emission of the proportional representation of a measure for their exacutions, it is provided by the controlled of a measure for their exacutions in the proportion of the proposition of the proposition the important one of water supply, must, I fear, necessarily stand over until next seesion of Parliament. Those, however, which are most pressingly required will be proceeded with.

In this statement of my future course in the new sphere of public usefulness to which I have been removed since I lest had the honour of addressing you, you will, I trust, find nothing at variance either with what I there expressed or with my public utterances on any former coasion. I therefore ask with confidence in the ratification of the ceurse which I have adopted—re-dection at your hands to the Legislative Assembly.

Your faithful sorvant.

JOHN ROBERTSON.

YOU THE RIECTORS OF CENTRAL CUMHER LAND.

GENTLEMEN.—The Perkes Ministry having resigned office through their defeat on the question of the Gardineminute, a motion to condemn which had been submitted to the new Parliament by Mr. Robertson, his Eccollency cought the sid of Six William Meanning in the formation of a new Government. The honorable gentlemen entrasted with this test applied, in the first instance, to the present Premier. Each spring to join him in the formsition of a formation of the present of the hone member for East Sydney.—Mr. Strart; neither of whom could see his way to join him in the formsition of a formation of a Government. I has had the honour of receiving an offer of a seal in the Cabinet of the hone, gentleman, but I felt that the answer to the question referred to the constrainty in the Assembly who voted in favour of Mr. Robertsen's resolution, that it would be, if not unconstitutional, certainly unusual to deviate from the practice generally observed in similar rasses, and seek resourse to a member of the Legislative Council to supply the place of an administration, with whose action and defeat the hon. and learned member was in no way connected. Sir William Manning having ultimately failed in forming a Government, returned the trust confided to him by the Gevernment, returned the trust confided to him by the Gevernment,
returned the trust confided to him by the Gevernment,
returned the trust confided to him by the Gevernment,
returned the trust confided to him by the Gevernment,
returned the trust confided to him by the Gevernment,
returned the trust confided to him by the Gevernment,
returned the trust confided to him by the Gevernment,
returned the trust confided to him by the Gevernment,
returned the trust confided to him by the Gevernment, returned the trust confided to him by the offer in accepted, feeling that as I had been actively identined with the hone, member in the action which led to the

the administration which has succeeded the one then in power.

Through taking this position, as you are aware, the seat which I cocupied as one of the members for Central Cumberland has become vacant, and I have to sak you again for a repetition of that support which you have on everal previous considers honoured me with.

During the election which has recently taken place, I have had many and frequent consistent of appressing to you my opinions on the various important matters which have occupied, and are likely to coupt, public strention. I now appear before you, however, as a Minister in charge of a way important branch of the Public Bervion, and as a member of a Government, whose duty it will be, whilst stall times being prepared to defend the rights and privileges of the people, to submit such reforms and improvements in the Legislature of the colony as may appear to be requisite and desirable.

The question of railway actension is one of the greatest imperiance; and it is estifactory to find that the efforts of Parliament are likely to result in restoring the large trade of the south-western portion of the colony, which has hitherto tended to increase the exports and wealth of the neighbouring colony of Victoria. I am in hopes that Parliament will consent to further action being taken which shall eventually bring to the port of 8 ydney the whole of the produce of our axtensive territory.

ORNTIEMEN,—Mr. Robertson having been commissioned by his Excellency to form an Administration, has offered me a seat in the Cabinet as Minister for Mines, which I have accepted. It therefore becomes necessary for me to appeal to you for re-election.

The policy of the new Government may be anticipated from their antecedents, as many of the members of it have invariably been found supporting every liberal and important measure introduced into the Assembly during the last fifteen years.

It will be my duty to submit to Parliament, as specify as possible, proposals to remeve the numerous difficulties which the recontly passed Mining Act and Ragalations thereunder have placed in the way of the development of the vast and various mineral resources of the country.

Among the other important measures which must engage the stiention of the Government are:—
The administration of the Electoral Law.—Placing the Municipal institutions (including the city of Sydney) in more astifactory financial condition—
The amendment of the Electoral Law, either by a division of the electorates, or by giving to each of them, as have, by reason of an increased representation, either of which, it seems to me, may be done without putting the country to the expense and trouble et an early supported election.

Affording our pastoral tenants and other residents of the far interior such means of transit by the improvement of the river communication as will enable them to sand their wool and other produce to Sydney, instead of the Adjoining colonies.

ELECTORS OF CANTERBURY—Mr. AARON WHEELER will CONTEST the ELECTION.

The Sydney Morning Berald. TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1876. A CORRESPONDENT signing himself "Doubt," has referred to a point which, though not of primary importance, is worth discussing. Mr. PANKER has been blamed by his successor for not as "Governor's Minister," moving, in the usual way, that the GOVERNOR'S message to the Assembly be printed. Was he to blame, and if so why?

Let it be remembered that at the time that Let it be remembered that at the time that Government had tendered their resignations and those resignations had been accepted. They had ceased to be Governor's Ministers Iney had ceased to be Governor's Ministers in the ordinary sense of the term, and were no longer constitutional advisers. They were only Ministers for the purpose of presiding over the various departments and keeping the Governmental machinery going till the new men were sworn in. the motion which it is usual to make when a communication from the Governor is sent down. He was still the leader of the House. Mr. ROBERTSON at that time had not been sen or. Sir WILLIAM MANNING belonged to the other Chamber, and had no representative in the Assembly. Till displaced, Mr. PARKES acted as leader of the Assembly, and in that capacity he moved the adjourn-ment of the House. It is a mark of respect always shown to a Governor's meson the leader of the House to see that these on the leader of the House to see that these marks of respect are duly shown. And he might have done this avowedly proforms without in any way committing himself to anything further. While, therefore, we do not consider that as "Governor's Minister" he neglected any duty, we cannot hold him so completely acquitted as leader of the Assembly.

At the same time we have no idea whatever that he intended any discourtesy. What he did was done deliberately and on the ground 200,000 FT. extra prime Cedar, from Daintree River. Goodlet & Smith NRW SOUTH WALES SHALE AND OIL COMPANY.—The following Cartificate has been received from Mr. Charless Watt Professor of Chemistry. Government Analyst, and Inspector of Keressne:—
"Dyring some recent experiments having relevance to the illuminating power of hereesne oil and gas, it was observed that the 'Comet' Oil yielded a light of rather higher illuminating power, with a smaller consumption of oil, than the beet brand of American hereesne obtainable in this market. the did was done deliberately and on the ground of some principle. This was evident from the fact that after his attention was called to the omission he declined to rectify it. But it by no means follows from that that the COMET KEROSENE OIL

THE spirit of Mr. VOGEL's policy seems to be THE spirit of Mr. VOGEL's policy seems to be intectious, and there are symptoms that South Australia is catching the infection. The present Government are, perhaps, not affected with it. Their main desire appears to be to follow the lead of Victoria in the matter of public education, and to establish a system which shall be "secular, compulsory, and tree." They do not overlook the necessity for considerable railway extension. Something is to be done to secure the Murray trade, but to be done to secure the Murray trade, but a commission has been appointed in Adelaide to inquire into the question how best to extend the railways of the colony; and until that com rission presents its report, it would not, of ourse, be wise, or, at least, not convenient, for the Government to be very explicit as to the directions in which it is contemplated to condirections in which it is contemplated to constitut new lines or to extend existing ones. The Government programme does not seem to have given entire satisfaction, and it is probable that in the new House there will be a formidable Opposition. The Ministry are charged with having neglected their duty with regard to the land laws, with having made a mess of the bonds of the coleny, and with having shown a general went of vigour and intelligence in their Acministration. The country, it appears to be thought in some quarters, has had quite enough of what Mr. Disarkel is endeavouring, though what Mr. DISBARLI is endeavou ot with complete success, to give England repose, "and now demands a change.

If the hour has come, so has the man. Mr. CUCAUT, who is spoken of as the leader of COpposition, and who has held office as torney-General in previous Ministries, in his the Opposition, and who has held office as Attorney-General in previous Ministries, in his address to the electors, expresses the somewhat startling opinion that "the time has anived when the country should be governed more as a nation and less as a municipality." If it is intended by this that South Australia has during the last year or two been governed rather on the municipal system, the insinuation is intelligible; but seeing that the colony has been engaged for some years in a persistent effort to found a settlement some two thousand miles from the capital, and has succeeded in spanning the continent with a telegraph, and providing for the whole of Australia dsily telegraphic communication with Europe, it is not very clear how its affairs can have been generally presided over by men of the true vestry stamp.

Mr. Boucaur, it would seem, is seized with the idea that if one colony can be "precipitated into a nation," so can another. The idea is not unnatural. Colonization is now a much more rapid process than it used to be. If Britain or Germany could get hold of another such territory as New South Wales, it would not take between eighty and ninety years to settle on it a population of 600,000 people. The facilities for transporting men from one part of the world to another are now so great that, given anywhere in the temperate zone an unoccupied territery of sufficient extent, possessing a fertile soil and a good climate, there is no reason why it should not in a very few years contain a nation composed of one or more Buropean races. At the rate at which immigrants are now being introduced into New Zealand, that colony will soon surpass in population some of the smaller European kingdoms. Possibly Mr. Vogel is looking forward to some much greater result than even this. According to HOCHSTETTER, if we remember right, New Zealand is capable of maintaining a population of twelve millions. Whether this estimate is to be relied on or not, the resources of the colony are undoubtedly very great. It not only possesses a large extent of fertile and well-watered country, but also a climate highly favourable to the English constitution. With well-watered country, but also a climate highly favourable to the English constitution. With such a possession, why should Englishmen complain of want of elbow-room in their own country? It is true New Zealand cannot be reached without some difficulty; but, compared with the advantage to the English labourer of starting afresh in such a country, the difficulties of transit thither must be held to be very inconsiderable.

Mr. Vogel evidently understands all this, and is resolved not to let slip the opportunity of grasping at once for New Zealand such advantages as circumstances place within her advantages as circumstances place within her reach. It is difficult to resist the impression that Mr. Beucaut is inspired with the desire of emulating the New Zealand statesman. He advocates the pushing forward of railways into the interior, "particularly north from Port Augusta; also from the Burra northwards and posthesistand to the Burra Northwards and north-eastward to the Barrier Ranges, and from Port Adelaide to the Murray." An examination of the map will show that this is a tolerably extensive scheme; but railways alone are not enough. Though, to save time, the Murray must be tapped at once by means of a railway, yet, urges the leader of the Opposition. railway, yet, urges the leader of the Opposition, of "even more pressing national importance than railways is the opening of our great Australian river, the natural highroad to the richest and finest portions of the temperate zone in New Holland." The time must come, he says, and soon if the country is wise, "when the largest ships will find shelter at Port Victor and the Goolwa." The attempt to attract the Riverina trade to Port Victor has hitherto proved a failure, but Mr. Boucaur is hitherto proved a failure, but Mr. BOUGAUT is hitherto proved a failure, but Mr. BOUCAUT is prepared to spend a million of money, if necessary, in cutting a canal to connect the Murray with that port. We are not in a position to speak as to the practicability of making a safe entrance to the Murray under the shelter of Granite Island, but Mr. BOUCAUT says that, after the favourable reports of Colonel SANKEY and other claves engineers the accorder South and other clever engineers, the people of South Australia would be neglecting their interests if Australia would be neglecting their interests in they did not make the canal.

The carrying out of these grand schemes is of course impracticable with the present limited population of the colony. Mr. Boucaur has been a strong opponent of Government immigration, but the great works contemplated, including the construction of a canal, which may ciuding the construction of a canal which may cost a million sterling, cannot be accomplished without more hands. The introduction of immigrants therefore becomes a necessity. Indeed it is already the case in South Australia, as it is in Victoria and this colony, that the construction of public works is delayed for want of labour, and that there is an undesirable com-petition between public contractors and private employers.

Besides being prepared to see Government immigration resumed, Mr. Boucaur has become an advocate for free trade. He confesses to "sympathy with the motives leading to proportication," but he says "State policy cannot be controlled by sympathy," and he would not sillow the progress of a whole nation to be impeded for a partial benefit." It is not obvious at first sight why anyone should feel a sympathy for "the motives leading to protection" if protection be inconsistent with a sound "State policy," and can only secure "a partial benefit"; but we can congratulate Mr. Boucaur on having succeeded in suppressing the feeling at any rate. His reason for doing so, it appears, is what he believes to be the necessity for South Australia following New South Wales on the question of free trade. While, he argues, this colony was content with an approximation to the Victorian tariff, South Australia was safe in following Victoria; but "when the largest, ultimately to be the most powerful of our great neighbours, and that one with which the Murray would place us in most intimate conneighbours, and that one with which the Murray would place us in most intimate con-nection declares for free trade, we cannot adopt protection without lesing commerce in a much larger degree disadvantageous to us than pro-tection could be beneficial." The inference from this is that the leader of the Opposition in South Australia considers protection in itself a very good thing for a country if the neighbouring countries all adopt it. It is satisfactory to find that the example of this colony in the matter of free trade is not without effect, and that if it should fail to convince the judgment of our neighbours, it may nevertheless exercise wholesome influence on their legislation It will be interesting to see how far the country will endorse Mr. BOUCAUT'S Views. The prospect held out to the people is in some respects no doubt tempting, but it will be for them to remember that the success of Mr. V. GEL's scheme is not quite assured—that is it were, South Australia is not New Zealand; and that what may be possible and expedient in one country may be utterly impracticable in another. In such a colony as New Zealand it may be a perfectly rafe investment to borrow large sums of money to open up rich agricultural lands by means of railways. In South Australia, however, the conditions are widely different. The extent of really good land not already taken up is very limited, and the fact that paying crops have during the last two or three years been taken off many of the remote farms in the new taken off many of the remote farms in the new agricultural areas is not sufficient to warrant the construction of railways for the purpose of opening up country at a still greater distance from any port of shipment. The extension of the northern line of railway for the purpose of securing the Murray trade would not involve a ruinous expenditure, and might prove a very wise investment; but that would be but a fraction of Mr. Boyeaur's acheme. fraction of Mr. Boucaur's scheme.

fraction of Mr. Boucaut's scheme.

Then, again, South Australian statesmen will do well to consider what security they have that the large numbers of people who would have to be introduced to carry out a JULIUS VOOEL policy could be retained in the colony. In this matter the isolation of New Zealand, the compactness of her territory, and the richness of her resources, give her a great advantage over South Australia. That colony imported in former times large numbers of labourers, who afterwards made their homes in Victoria; and Mr. Vooel himself, to say nothing of her imitator, might find it a difficult task to make it even new so attractive a place to immigrants as to ensure their final settlement in it after the completion of the works for the construction of which of the works for the construction of which

When we increase the comforts and conveniences of life we usually increase our dangers and liabilities and dependence at the same time. It is very pleasant to have one's house lighted with gas from top to bottom, but it is ary perplexing when from some unknown and able coverable cause, the flow of gas is suddenly necked, and no means are at hand to illuminate. So when the independent sources of water supply have been abandoned in favour of connection with some general system, the sudden cutting off of the water is exceedingly annoying. Steam is an excellent motive power both by land and water, but those who put their trust in it are made at times to feel how very helpless they are when some slight circumstance interferes with the process of generating steam, or in what hopeless rain they are involved when it eacapes control. The use of iron in shipbuilding has been attended with great advantage, but, from certain circumstances not yet understood, these advantages are counterbalanced to some degree by great associated dangers.

Within the past twelve months have occurred numerous instances of iron vessels being dis-

Within the past twelve months have occurred numerous instances of iron vessels being dismasted. At one time there were as many as three dismasted vessels off our coasts; and one that the Champanan is at present refitting. three diamasted vessels off our coasts; and one of them, the Chrysomene, is at present refitting with masts brought out by the Caimbulg. Within the space mentioned, as many as seven large new iron ships bound to these colonies have lost their masts; and five other ships bound for the East have been similarly unfortunate. Various theories are afloat respecting the causes of these disasters; but no satisfactory explanation has appeared as wet Theories are all the causes of the second control of the second causes of the second causes. tory explanation has appeared as yet. The natural result is, that a prejudice against iron masts is created, and the advocates of wood are glad to find their declining cause again strengthesed. strengthened.

An inquiry, it may be remembered, was in-stituted at Melbourne into some of the circum-stances attending the dismasting of vessels entering Port Phillips, by Lloyd's agency, and forwarded to London. The Chief Surveyer at Lloyd's, and his assistants, reported on it in December last. Their report appears in the Lines, and contains some observations in the December last. Their report appears in the Times, and contains some observations that are worth attention.

The causes assigned by the Melbourne

The causes assigned by the Melbourne surveyors were five in number, as under:—

"1. That the vessels were overladen.

"2. That the stowage of iron was too low, thus making the vessel too laboursome.

"3. That the vessels were over-masted—the masts being too taut, considering the spread of rigging and the weight of yards.

"4. That sufficient care had not been taken in staying the masts, or in the strength of head-over.

gear.

5. That the masts were not stiff enough at the deck, and in one case that the material and workmanship were defective."

workmanship were defective."

These general conclusions, it seems, were not accompanied with particulars of each vessel, so that the surveyor finds it necessary to make a special inquiry before he is able to say asything very conclusive on the subject. For instance, although the Melbourne surveyor affirm the vessels under their notice were overladen, he says this cannot be a cause applying to all, since some of them are known to have been not deeply laden. He further says: "It is at the same time highly impressable that the amount of carge carried in the other ship was excessive, in view of the fact that no class of vessels is loaded with greater uniformity, as to freight of free board and surplus buoyancy, than these large salling surplus buoyancy, than these large salling versels outward bound."

The second is accepted as a point of greater weight. The stowage of iron here mentional is intended to mean that which enters into the construction—that to which what is terms the ship's stability is due. In consequence of the great speed required in sailing vessels, they will shift when light without ballast, notwith standing heavy equipment of masts and rigging. This stability is well enough when the loading is adapted to it, but ships so built do not admit of errors being made in placing the heavy weights where they should not be. Hence disasters are more likely to come with new ships than with ships that have made a voyage or two, because the captains have to acquire a knowledge of their peculiarities before they can load them judiciously. Injusticious stowage and excessive stability would be sure to produce violent rolling and under strain. The danger seems to increase with the desire for speed. "The more with the desire for speed." The more caution is likely to be exercised at first to keep the weights low down, thus causing greater liability to excessive stiffness." It seems that in the case of the vessels the Melbourne surveyors reported upon, the stability was increased by great weights of iron surplus buoyancy, than these large sailing Melbourne surveyors reported upon, the stability was increased by great weights of iron stowed low down.

The surveyor-in-chief agrees with the conclusions of the Melbourne surveyors as to the overweighting of sailing vessels with master and rigging, and he points out one important defect which may be witnessed in some of the vessels now in port, namely, that instead of spreading the rigging as much as possible to compensate for such additions to the strain as are due to longer masts, longer yards, double top-sails, and topgallant-yards, the shrouls are secured on the inside of the vessel instead of outside as is usual. outside as is usual.

Very great importance is attached to the lifth conclusion. The surveyor seems almost inclined to blame the material in most of the cases. The history of the disaster of the Caryomene we believe is, that defective material in the head gear caused that part to give way; and the maste, for want of this stay, gave way one after the other. The tackling of a ship is like a train of machinery—while all parts are saithful to the discharge of their own duty, the work goes amoothly; but so soon as one part tails, the others become overdone, irregularity sets in, and a stoppage ensues. Thus, a defective bolt, an eye-hole, or a stay may be the primary cause of shipwreck. The things most to be apprehended are bad material and bad workmanship.

With respect to material and manufacture a werkmanship.

With respect to material and manufacture a technical, or perhaps it might be termed a scientific, objection was made seme time ago to iron masts. It was said that unless they could be riveted by machine, the blow being given when the rivet was at red or white heat, the structure was not dependable. The crystalization in the iren of plates, in which the hammer was used upon the rivets when they were cold, was apt to undergo a change unfavourable to its coherence or toughness. Iron so treated, it was stated, became brittle. New masts are generally hand-riveted, and is hand-riveting very frequently many of the rivets are finished up in a cold state, consequently the metal is apt to be weakened. This objection we have not lately heard anything of, nor is it mentioned by the surveyor, and therefore we suppose it has been disposed of. The necessity of greater attention to the working of iron is apparent, however, from the fact that some of the masts have given way in consequence of defects discovered in the iron of which they were made. The question of relative thickness, &c., can only be decided in the course of time. of relative thickness, &c., can only be decided in the course of time.

in the course of time.

Amongst the proposals recently made to diminish the strain on the masts and rigging, while retaining the present spread of casvas and high speed, are, the Surveyor says, the following:—"To spread casvas ever four maste instead of three, as at present, thus enabling the height to be reduced; and to sturn to the old system of filling 'channels' of return to the order to admit of the shrouds passing outside the rails."

A strict investigation is to be made into the

A strict investigation is to be made into the circumstances of the disasters specified, and the suggestions ensuing will, it is understood, appear amongst the "rules" for ships intended for classification.

Daily Postal Delivery AT St. Peters.—A meeting of residents in the municipality of St. Peters was held, last evening, in the Foresters' Hall, Goot's River Road, for the purpose of considering the advisability of petitioning the Postmaster-General to grant a daily delivery of letters within the municipality. The Mayor of St. Peters, Mr. J. T. Gorus, occupied the chair. About seventy persons were present. The chairman explained that he had convent the meeting in purvanne of a requisition which he had received, signed by forty-seven of the inhabitants of the municipality, and read a letter received from Mr. Richard Hill, M. L.A., in which that gentleman excussed his absence, but intimated his willingness to be a member of the deputation proposed to be formed. The chairman also stated that the Hon. J. Lucas Minister for Mines, would have been present but for the position which he held as a member of the Government. Though he could not be present, however, Mr. Lucas had said that he was favourable to the movement, and had no doubt that the inhabitants would succeed in obtaining that for which they seked. Mr. R. Riley then moved the first resolution, which was,—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, it is desirable that a deputation should wait upon the Postmaster-General to sek him te grant to the inhabitants of St. Petrs and Cook's River; and the consequence was that they were taken to the Rolevery of letters." He said that persons residing in Sydney or in the orantry, when sending letters to that neighbourhood, invariably addressed them to Cook's River; and the consequence was that they were taken to being known. The resolution, was seconded by Mr. Douglas, and carried unanimously, after which Mr. James Cook moved, and Alderman Haigh seconded the following proposition —"That the following gentlemen form themselvee into a deputation to wait upon the Postmaster-General,

THE MINISTERIAL CHANGE—BORDER DUTIES.

—I be dustralasion of Saturday last observes:—"The political firmament in New South Wales has olesred, and its aspect of affairs is more promising than it was a week ago. Mr. John Robertson, when sent for, seems to have experienced no difficulty in forming a working Ministry; and although some shoub has been expressed regarding the dutable character of the new Government, we shall better be able to estimate this whun its policy has been submitted to Parliament and the country. We observe that our contemporary, the Systems Morning Hersid, views the change of Ministry as favourable, by establishing a change of personnel, for the remewel of negotiations respecting the border daties. The old irritation left by the failure of the former arrangement must have consided with the official life of the Ministers between whom it arose, and Mr. France and Mr. Parles having now passed from the field of intercolonial diplemacy, there cannot be any present of difficulty on this sorte force in the argument of our Sydney contemporary that in any future sottlement of the daties levied by Victoria our colonial produce should be left out of account."

KILLED BY THE FALLING OF A BOUGH.—Information was brought into town on Wednesday afternoon (the Narrabri Haraid states) to the effect that a fetal accident had cocurred a few hours previously at Molly Crossing-jaco. The particulars, as related to us, are as follows. Two men, travelling towards Wes Was, camped for a few hours during the heat of the day, had sought the shelter of a large tree, and were, it was supposed, having a sleep, when suddenly, and without any apparent cause, a large limb fell, and striking both men, killed one instantly, and refrously injured the other. One of Mr. Hoekisson's stechmen, on being apprised of the sad cocurrence, immediately started for town for police assistance. The name of the unfortunate man is unknown at present. Mr. Smith, P.M., started out to hold an inquiry.

BURNED TO DEATH.—The Melbourne Apprehered to the make of the Freebyterian Church, the Mothem secount of a fatal burning case which occurred at the makes of the Freebyterian Church, the Hotham, where the paster of the church, the Rev. A. D. K'numont, resided. It appears that Miss Agnes Kinnmett, the dangher of the pastor, after coming from church, went into the kitchen to procure some hot water. While standing closes to the fire, by some means a light mu-lis dress she was attired in become ignited. The unfortunate girl, becoming alarmed, ran into the yard screaming, and the famus becoming augmented by the wind, she was son enveloped. Her body, face, and head were frightfully scorched, the hair having been completely burned off. Medical assistance was promptly secured, and every remedial agency brought into use to alleviate the horribotoriure the poor creature was suffering. At the time of the sed courrence Mr. Kinimont was absent at Sorrento with a portion of his family, having left the deceased with her sister and the servant in charge of the house.

DROWNED IN A WATERHOLE.—We (Dubbie Dispatch) are informed that last week a young man, whose name we have been unable to learn, met his death rather suddenly at Ten-mile Waterhole. It seems he was travailing with overland sheep, and went to a waterhole to wash a shirt. Not coming back, his mates went looking for him, and found him drowned.

MALICIOUSLY INJURING A HORRE.—The Meane Mercury relates that a hawker named Dodd set out en Wednesday afternoon, in the direction of Nimitybeile. He cressed the creek near Mr. David Taylor's residence, and camped on the flat there for the night. The horses were then put out to grass, but they came belo hear sash from four to six inches in length, drawn by a sharp instrament, in proximity to the jugular vein. Whoever the perpetuator of this brutal act, it seems that having taken the hobbles of the horse, he thereupon placed them round the satinal's neck, so that he might accomplish fully his intention; but evidently the horse broke away, and fearing that its companion, a bay horse with a bell on, would arouse the owner, who was alsepting in his dray, the scoundred did not carry out his fell purpose.

THE GOVERNOR'S MINISTER

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MIRALL.

Siz.—Permit me to attempt to answer "Doubt's" query in this morning's paper. The Premier is, as a matter of course—expecially when Colonial Secretary—through which officer all communications must pass to the Governor—"the Governor's Minister," and it was in this sense only. I presume, that Mr. Bobetcon, in his address to the electors of West Sydney, spoke of Mr. Parkes, who was at the period referred to Premier and Colonial Secretary. MONDAY EVENING.

MINDAY EVENING.

of all sufferers by alcoholic potenting as exhibited in the continual morbid craving for drink, I recommend what completely curred myself, viz.:—Half-a-pint to a pint of hot ten every morning, as soon after 6 o'clock as possible—and if flatuline in the chest arises through dropping the grog add a little ground ginger to the ten.

I have been a testolater nearly two years—was cursed by persevering in above recips, and consequently have faith therein. Let the affitted try it—if my advice does not affect a cure it will not injure any person.

SEWATE OF PURCHASING MACHINES, which once were good by comparison, but now are bad by comparison.

The WANZER MACHINES ARE NOW The PRIZE MACHINES OF THE WORLD.

The LITTLE WANZER has nover yet been defeated in public competition.

It is used in the British Public schools because the premier hand and treadle machine of the world.

No disinterested person disputes its superiority,

The Wanner Company having defeated all others in the race for excellence in the speciality of the combined hand and trendle machine, the Little Wanner, HAVE TURNED THRIE ATTENTION DURING THE LAST FRW TEARS to the manufacture of larger FAMILY and MANUFACTURING MACHINES, and we sak the public to judge with what result from the following facts:—

"At the Exhibition at Brantford, Canada, last October "(1874), the 'D' Machine took 1st PRIZE over Singer's No. 2 and

Wheeler and Wilson No. 6 for MANUFACTURING. "and the 'F' Machine took 1st PRIZE over the Family Singer,

"Webster, for FAMILY USE."

These and other FACTS so altogether beyond mere assertion, and purchasers of Wansor machines may FEEL SATISFIED they are buying wisely.

M. PITT and SON have received instructions from J. L. Hassall, Esq., to sell by station, at the Exchange, Sydney, on WHDNESDAY, 17th February, at 12 o'clock,
His well-known and unsurpassed Macquarie stations, comprising the blocks
PETER, DUFFITY BACK BIBERJIBBERY, and MARTHAGUI CREEK, together with about 2700 head of quiet well-bred cattle, to be mustered and delivered.
This splendid property has five miles frontage to the cartie, to be mustered and delivered.

This splendid property has five miles frontage to the pick of the Macquarie, and extends beek fifteen miles to the Macquarie, and extends beek fifteen miles to the Marthagui, to which it has also five miles frontage.

The whole of the country is unsurpassed for its fattening qualities, herbage of all kinds grows luxuriantly, and even in the present dry eason, the frontage is desorthed as looking like a wheat field. Now is the time for intending purchasers to inspect, an notwithstanding the dryanes of the season, the stock are all in first-class condition, and a prime draft now ready for market.

The cattle are a well-known brand in the Western district, and quite equal to any of the most noted down there.

The cause and quite equal to any of the most nown with tict, and quite equal to any of the most nown with there.

The improvements are embetantial and complete, and comprise chingled dwelling-house of dwe rooms, with vernadah front and back, large dining-room, shingled, with cellar underneath; two stors rooms attached in some hute, lither, and a water tenk for use of house.

There is a first-class stockyard, and horse paddock of 20 acres.

The whole of the runs are fenced, except about 4 miles, for which the posts are already laid upon the line.

The station is invaluable in a dry season, as the water never fails, and the cattle are always fat.

The last draft of 250 mixed cattle sold in Mudges in Ociober last at £8 10s, all round.

Further particulars can be obtained on application to G. M. PITT and SOM.
